

~Nebula Pillar~

Bylaws

The Nebula Pillar is centered on the goal of successful, effective leadership. We intend to teach our members what a good leader is, and how to be one. We base our guidelines around the five main virtues of leadership.

- Humility

We believe that this is the most important element of leadership. Humility allows you to interact more gracefully and efficiently with your companions, like a well-oiled gear in a machine.

- Passion

Passion is another vital step in the path to greatness. It provides the fuel for what you do. It enables you to push harder and harder toward your goals, and more importantly, it draws others to your cause as well.

- Courage

Courage is what keeps you from giving up. Courage is what makes you resist failure. It provides the will to keep on trying, to not back down in the face of danger or difficulty. Remember: courage is not the act of subduing your fears, it is your refusal to allow your fears to subdue you.

- Decisiveness

Decisiveness is also an essential tool. Decisiveness goes hand in hand with courage, but decisiveness is more of an action than courage, which is a state. Decisiveness is an initial commitment to not give up or waver in your goals. Being decisive keeps you steady and clears your path.

- Clarity

Clarity is important in the actual leading. Clarity allows for successful communication with people behind your cause, and makes clear what you intend to do and how you intend to do it. Basically, it makes it easy for people you lead to understand you.

This is the crest of the Nebula Pillar, the centerpiece of the crest symbolises Orion, who resembles a purple eye. Behind that is the nebula pillar which is a centerpiece in Orion's plan. On each side of the crest, there are predictors, one of the strongest creatures created by Orion. Behind them is the wings of the nebula mantle which is created by combining nebula fragments and luminite bars.

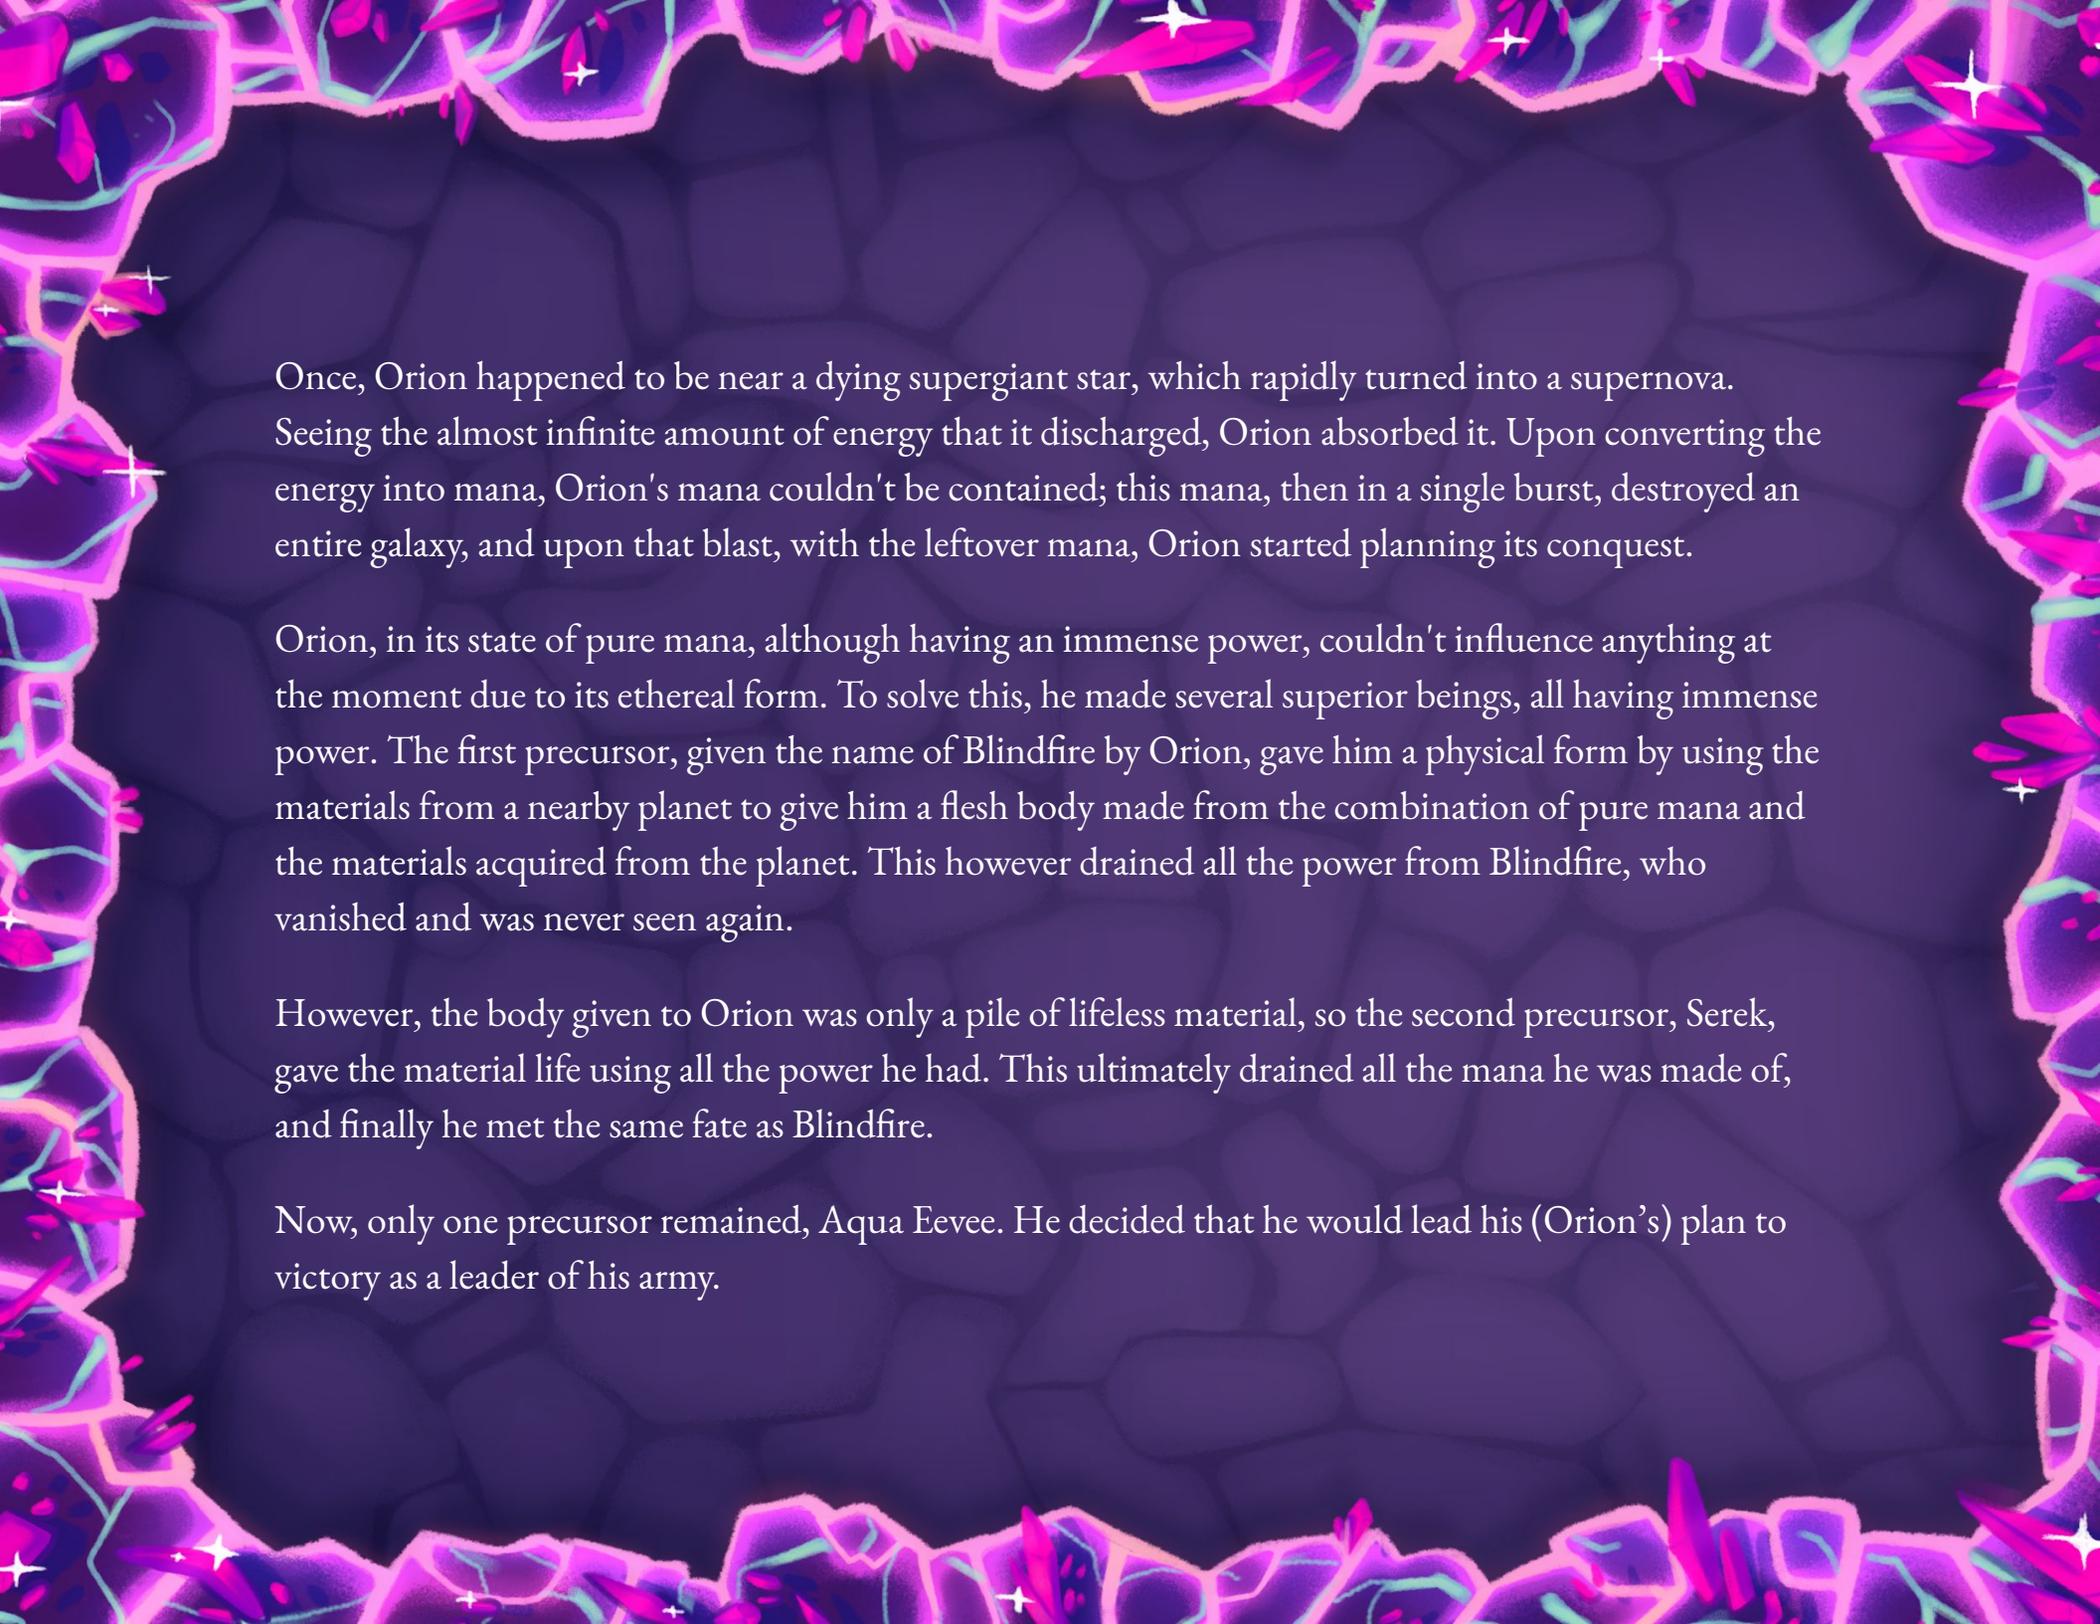

Lore

At the dawn of time, when the stars had just begun to glow, an anomaly formed by the creation of the universe, came upon this world. It was an all powerful entity, overflowing with mana so much that it disrupted even the balance between planetary systems with just its mere presence. This entity, consisting of a single eye, was known as Orion.

Orion roamed the universe for eons, destroying everything in its path - so much so that it began to be classified as a traveling natural disaster between planetary systems; however, what they didn't know was that it was preparing something far greater than they could ever imagine.

What was really happening was that each time Orion consumed a planet or star, it sucked the energy stored in it and converted it into mana which it consumed to sustain itself and survive.

Once, Orion happened to be near a dying supergiant star, which rapidly turned into a supernova. Seeing the almost infinite amount of energy that it discharged, Orion absorbed it. Upon converting the energy into mana, Orion's mana couldn't be contained; this mana, then in a single burst, destroyed an entire galaxy, and upon that blast, with the leftover mana, Orion started planning its conquest.

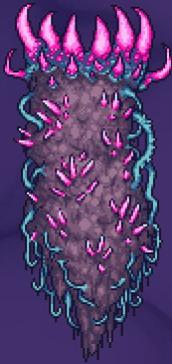

Orion, in its state of pure mana, although having an immense power, couldn't influence anything at the moment due to its ethereal form. To solve this, he made several superior beings, all having immense power. The first precursor, given the name of Blindfire by Orion, gave him a physical form by using the materials from a nearby planet to give him a flesh body made from the combination of pure mana and the materials acquired from the planet. This however drained all the power from Blindfire, who vanished and was never seen again.

However, the body given to Orion was only a pile of lifeless material, so the second precursor, Serek, gave the material life using all the power he had. This ultimately drained all the mana he was made of, and finally he met the same fate as Blindfire.

Now, only one precursor remained, Aqua Eevee. He decided that he would lead his (Orion's) plan to victory as a leader of his army.

Orion, having only one precursor left, decided to create his army based on the last precursor. He created sentient humanoid creatures made from pure mana, creatures with incredible magic power and strength, destined to expand Orion's domination over the universe. These creatures are us: Nebulans, we are made solely for that purpose, to conquer any and every planetary system, so we can harvest their energy to fuel our deity - and as it grows in power, we shall gain strength as well, and none shall stand in our path.

To help us, Orion also created highly intelligent creatures to assist in our quest for domination. These creatures are:

The Pillars

The Pillars were not created by Orion, however he tried to absorb their power and failed. As a solution, he transferred the energy from the pillar to make enemies, which the Pillar summons at his command. These creatures gather energy and bring it back to the Pillar. Orion fears the day the Pillar gets destroyed, as the Moon Lord will be set free, kill Orion, and conquer the universe. So, he commands the creatures to kill anyone who gets anywhere near the Pillar.

Brain suckler

The Brain Sucklers are floating, brain-like creatures with small tendrils underneath them. Their main function is to attach to the head of a creature, secure itself on its prey, and suck its mana, causing blindness to the target. It then transports the mana back to the Pillar to be channeled.

Nebula Floater

Nebula Floaters are like Brain Sucklers - brain-like creatures, but this time, with an eye.

Their main purpose is to scout the areas the Pillars could be deployed in, spawning small eyes that roam the land to find living creatures whose mana can be harvested.

Evolution beast

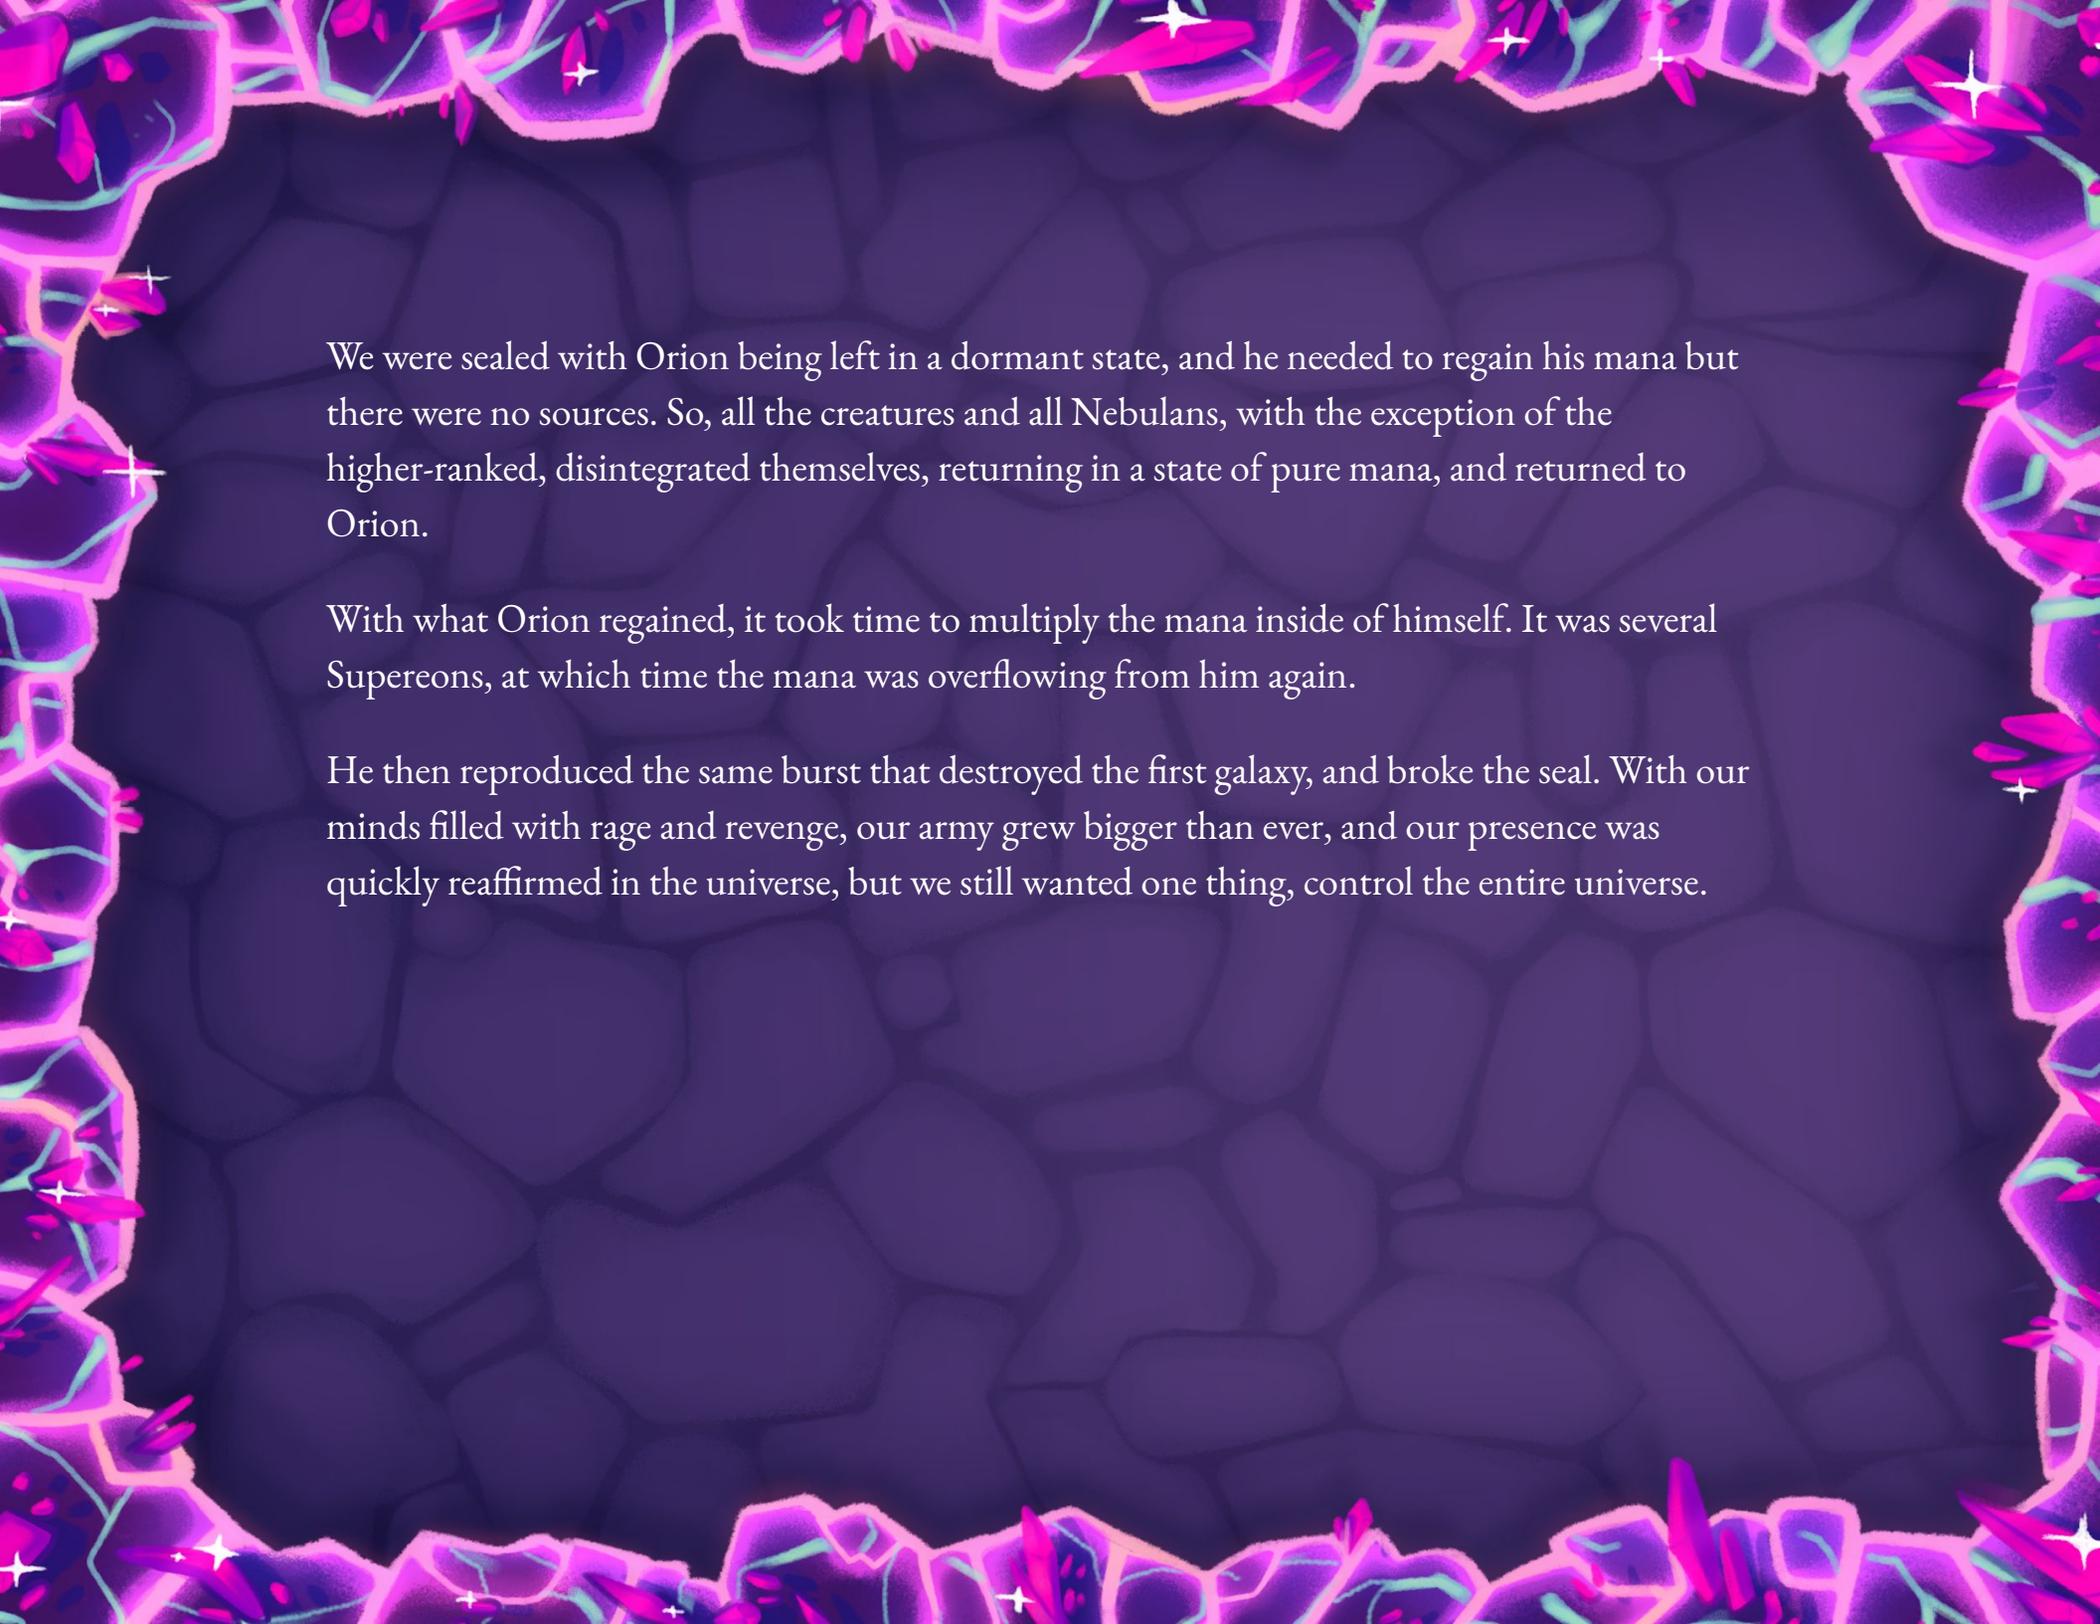

Evolution Beasts are quadruped creatures that are used when the living beings chosen for harvest are still resisting, as mana can still be collected when the target is dead. They have a primal instinct and are more often used for non-sentient beings, but they can still be used on more advanced species.

Predictors

Predictors are the most advanced life forms created by the Pillars. They are humanoid creatures and have their brains exposed as their brains often burst out of their heads as they grow. They can shoot laser beams with ridiculous precision and can predict where their targets will move, making them very effective against sentient and mobile beings alike. They can also be paired with Evolution Beasts to serve as meat shields while they attack from the back.

We grew more and more, gaining control of more and more systems which became Orion's food, but our power started to worry other great powers. This is where the whole Vortex fleet started a war with the intention of sealing Orion away, as his gargantuan and wondrous power could overpower them. The war lasted several eons, with each side equal in strength. We lost many of Orion's followers as Vortex ships stood their ground, and succeeded in sealing us away in the darkness of space; after Orion's power depleted due to generating too many creatures.

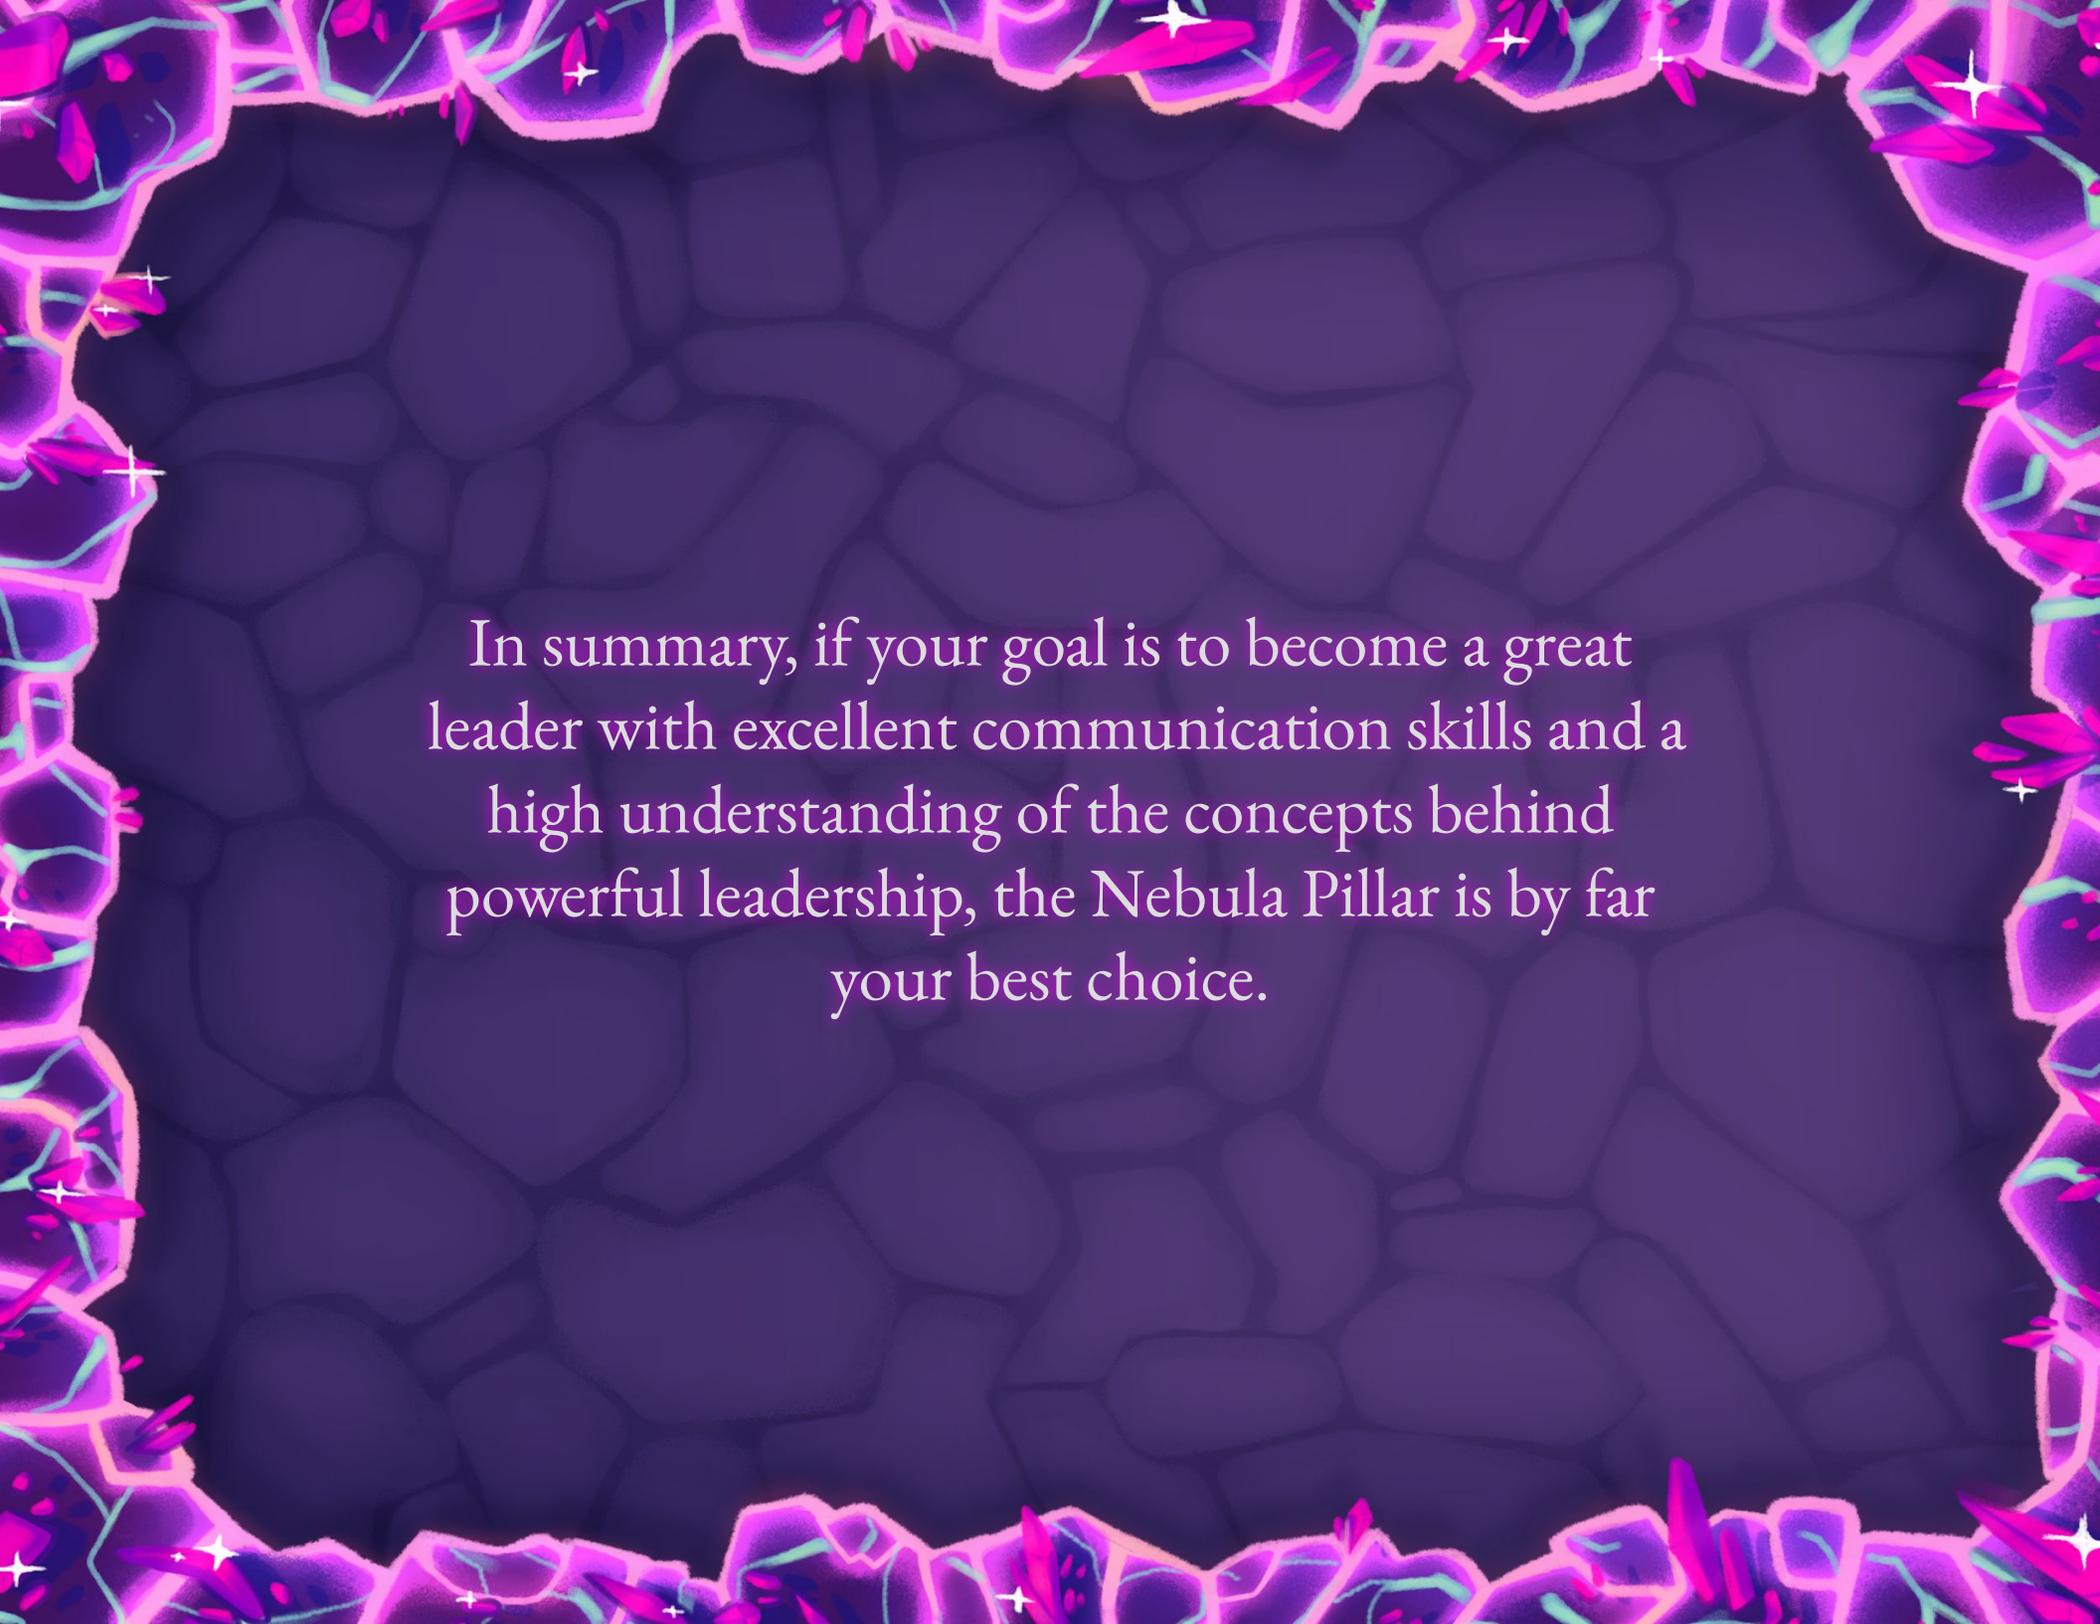

We were sealed with Orion being left in a dormant state, and he needed to regain his mana but there were no sources. So, all the creatures and all Nebulans, with the exception of the higher-ranked, disintegrated themselves, returning in a state of pure mana, and returned to Orion.

With what Orion regained, it took time to multiply the mana inside of himself. It was several Supereons, at which time the mana was overflowing from him again.

He then reproduced the same burst that destroyed the first galaxy, and broke the seal. With our minds filled with rage and revenge, our army grew bigger than ever, and our presence was quickly reaffirmed in the universe, but we still wanted one thing, control the entire universe.

This is the flag for the Nebula Pillar. There are many aspects to the flag, such as the walls, crown, and centerpiece. The crown is to represent Orion in his quest to conquer the universe. The walls represent the Nebula Pillars, which are a base for Nebula creatures to bring mana to Orion. The center being is Orion. He is surrounded by Nebula Blazes, as these projectiles can be forged with the shards of the Nebula Pillar.

In summary, if your goal is to become a great leader with excellent communication skills and a high understanding of the concepts behind powerful leadership, the Nebula Pillar is by far your best choice.
